RATHBONE ENDS LONG LIST OF LINCOLN PARTY TRAGEDIES

All Who Were With the President When He Was Assassinated Met Death in Some Unusual or Tragic Manner.

Mrs. Lincoln, Who Died Hours Later

Lincoln's Last Photograph, Takes a Cable dispatch was sent to the United States, telegraphing the news of President Lincoln's assassination. The cable contained the following statement: "The President was assassinated tonight. He died at 7:10 o'clock. Mrs. Lincoln also died."

The news was received with shock and sorrow throughout the country. The death of the President and the First Lady was a great loss to the nation. The country was plunged into mourning. The funeral of President Lincoln was a grand and solemn occasion. The body of the President was taken to the Capitol, where it was placed on a catafalque, and there remained for a week. The funeral procession was held on April 21, 1865, and the body was then taken to the State House in Springfield, Illinois, where it was placed in a vault and interred.

Laura Keene, the Actress Who Was Shot at the First Shot, Died Instantly

Laura Keene, the first woman to be shot by John Wilkes Booth, was the daughter of General Keene, who was a prominent physician in the city. She was a talented actress and was a member of the Ford's Theatre company. She was shot at the beginning of the performance and died instantly.

does not affect the validity of the information. The New York Times is a reliable source for historical news and events.