The Day of the Bargain Dental Parlor Where Patients Were Maltreated and Fleeing Is Passed.

The most noted case of this kind occurred several years ago when a woman patient spent $6,000 for malpractice resulting in injuries of the jaw. The patient, who was a dentist, claimed that she was injured by a neighboring dentist who had been in the practice of dentistry for over 20 years. The case was tried in court and the dentist was found guilty and fined $100 for malpractice.

The next day, the patient was arrested for pratique with her own husband and was fined $25 for malpractice.

The most noted case of this kind occurred several years ago when a woman patient was injured by a neighboring dentist who had been in the practice of dentistry for over 20 years. The case was tried in court and the dentist was found guilty and fined $100 for malpractice.

The next day, the patient was arrested for pratique with her own husband and was fined $25 for malpractice.

The most noted case of this kind occurred several years ago when a woman patient was injured by a neighboring dentist who had been in the practice of dentistry for over 20 years. The case was tried in court and the dentist was found guilty and fined $100 for malpractice.

The next day, the patient was arrested for pratique with her own husband and was fined $25 for malpractice.

The most noted case of this kind occurred several years ago when a woman patient was injured by a neighboring dentist who had been in the practice of dentistry for over 20 years. The case was tried in court and the dentist was found guilty and fined $100 for malpractice.

The next day, the patient was arrested for pratique with her own husband and was fined $25 for malpractice.

The most noted case of this kind occurred several years ago when a woman patient was injured by a neighboring dentist who had been in the practice of dentistry for over 20 years. The case was tried in court and the dentist was found guilty and fined $100 for malpractice.

The next day, the patient was arrested for pratique with her own husband and was fined $25 for malpractice.