GIRL TERRORIST'S ESCAPE FROM A RUSSIAN PRISON

A Fellow-Prisoner Writes the Thrilling Story of Tolqa Rogozhinnkova's Flight and Subsequent Execution.

I do not know whether it is possible to describe the feelings of a countryman of the girl who was shot in the prison of St. Petersburg. I am not a fellow-countryman of hers, but I have heard from others who are and they say that her death was a terrible blow to her. I will not attempt to describe it, but I will try to give you an idea of the character of the girl herself.

She was of medium height, with fair hair and gray eyes. Her figure was graceful and her manners were gentle. She had a sweet voice and a kind smile. She was always cheerful and never complained. She was a good singer and a good reader. She loved music and reading.

Her Father's Home.

She lived in her father's home and was very fond of him. Her father was a doctor and he was always there to help her. She was happy there and she did not want to leave. She liked to help her father and she was good at it. She knew all about medicine and she could cure many illnesses.

Her Love for Tolga.

She loved Tolga and she was always with him. She was his true friend and she was always there to help him. She was a good nurse and she knew how to make him better. She was always there to comfort him and to help him through his difficulties.

Her Execution.

She was executed because she was a terrorist. She was shot in the prison of St. Petersburg. Her father was very sad and he left the prison without saying anything. He was very angry and he wanted to take revenge on the man who had shot his daughter. He was very angry and he wanted to take revenge on the man who had shot his daughter.

Her Death.

She died bravely and she was a true heroine. She was a good nurse and she knew how to make her patients better. She was always there to help them and to comfort them. She was a good friend and she was always there to help her friends.

Her Memory.

She was a true heroine and she will always be remembered. She was a good nurse and she knew how to make her patients better. She was always there to help them and to comfort them. She was a good friend and she was always there to help her friends.

The Inspector Who Watched Her Through the Door Did Not Suspect Her of Shaming Insanity.

The nurse opened the door and Tolga ran out.

The Inspector Who Watched Her Through the Door Did Not Suspect Her of Shaming Insanity.