MOTTOES THAT HAVE GUIDED PROMINENT MEN TO SUCCESS

“Never Complain, Never Explain” Is President Taft’s Favorite—Rules of Life of Carnegie, Bishop Greer, W. C. Brown, and Others.

By E. B. Edwards.

H ave you a watchword? "The American people like to be amused," said E. B. Barse, and by that means, which he occupied, he lived, and by it gained all political success and international note.

"Never Complain, Never Explain" is the watchword of a noted statesman. It was the watchword of Professor A. D. Davis, the late United States Senator from Indiana. He was a man of great ability, and his motto was always with him. He carried it in his pocketbook, and every time he sat down to write, he would pull it out and write it down. It was his watchword, and he never failed to use it.

"Never Complain, Never Explain" is also the watchword of a great financier. He is a man who has been in business for many years, and has always been successful. He is a man who has never complained, and has never explained. He is a man who has always been able to look on the bright side of things, and to face difficulties with a smile.

"Never Complain, Never Explain" is also the watchword of a great philanthropist. He is a man who has given away millions of dollars, and has never complained, and has never explained. He is a man who has always been able to look on the bright side of things, and to face difficulties with a smile.

"Never Complain, Never Explain" is also the watchword of a great industrialist. He is a man who has built up a great fortune, and has never complained, and has never explained. He is a man who has always been able to look on the bright side of things, and to face difficulties with a smile.

"Never Complain, Never Explain" is also the watchword of a great statesman. He is a man who has been in the highest position in the government, and has never complained, and has never explained. He is a man who has always been able to look on the bright side of things, and to face difficulties with a smile.

"Never Complain, Never Explain" is also the watchword of a great author. He is a man who has written many books, and has never complained, and has never explained. He is a man who has always been able to look on the bright side of things, and to face difficulties with a smile.

"Never Complain, Never Explain" is also the watchword of a great poet. He is a man who has written many beautiful poems, and has never complained, and has never explained. He is a man who has always been able to look on the bright side of things, and to face difficulties with a smile.

Other examples could be added, but the point is clear that "Never Complain, Never Explain" is a watchword that has been held in high esteem by many great men and women.

John W. Gates and His Grandson.

Andrew Carnegie.

A. Foster Higinb.

Bishop David H. Green.

W. C. Brown and His Daughter.

(Author's note: The watchword is a symbol of the man's character and his ability to face challenges with a positive attitude. It is a reminder that complaining and explaining are not productive and that it is better to look on the bright side of things.)
