"F. P. A." Who Also Writes Jokes Himself, Gives The Times the Confessions of a Professional Chestnut Gatherer—How He Keeps Sane by Reading Darwin.

Mr. Adames, the well-known author of "F. P. A," who is also a professional chestnut gatherer, has given the Times some very interesting information on the subject of his job. He tells us that he has been gathering chestnuts for more than 30 years, and that he is the best chestnut gatherer in the world. He says that he has gathered more chestnuts than any other man in the world, and that he has never been caught by the police. He also tells us that he has written a book on the subject of chestnut gathering, which he is about to publish.

Mr. Adames says that the chestnut gathering is a very difficult job, and that it requires a great deal of skill. He says that he has to be able to climb trees, and that he has to be able to find the chestnuts in the trees. He also says that he has to be able to throw the chestnuts into a bag, and that he has to be able to keep the bag from falling into the trees. He says that he has to be able to work very hard, and that he has to be able to work very fast.

Mr. Adames says that he has been gathering chestnuts for more than 30 years, and that he has never been caught by the police. He says that he has written a book on the subject of chestnut gathering, which he is about to publish.