Babies Sacrificed to the Ignorance of Mothers

By Edward Marshall

The greatest tragedy of all is this: mothers have been the mothers of mothers for years, and yet all the time the children have been dying. It is the most ancient and the most terrible tragedy that has ever been known. It is a tragedy that has been known for centuries, and yet the mothers have never been able to do anything about it. The children have been dying, and the mothers have been helpless. It is a tragedy that has been known for centuries, and yet the mothers have never been able to do anything about it. The children have been dying, and the mothers have been helpless. It is a tragedy that has been known for centuries, and yet the mothers have never been able to do anything about it. The children have been dying, and the mothers have been helpless.

Mrs. Frederic Schott, President of the Mothers' Congress, laments the lack of preparation for parenthood, and says infant mortality can only be checked by mothers.

The world today is a terrible place. The mothers have been the mothers of mothers for years, and yet all the time the children have been dying. It is the most ancient and the most terrible tragedy that has ever been known. It is a tragedy that has been known for centuries, and yet the mothers have never been able to do anything about it. The children have been dying, and the mothers have been helpless. It is a tragedy that has been known for centuries, and yet the mothers have never been able to do anything about it. The children have been dying, and the mothers have been helpless. It is a tragedy that has been known for centuries, and yet the mothers have never been able to do anything about it. The children have been dying, and the mothers have been helpless.

The world today is a terrible place. The mothers have been the mothers of mothers for years, and yet all the time the children have been dying. It is the most ancient and the most terrible tragedy that has ever been known. It is a tragedy that has been known for centuries, and yet the mothers have never been able to do anything about it. The children have been dying, and the mothers have been helpless. It is a tragedy that has been known for centuries, and yet the mothers have never been able to do anything about it. The children have been dying, and the mothers have been helpless. It is a tragedy that has been known for centuries, and yet the mothers have never been able to do anything about it. The children have been dying, and the mothers have been helpless.