INDIANS HAVE A CELEBRATION OF THEIR OWN JULY 4

They Call It Give-Away Day Among the Dakotas and the Sioux Tribes, and They Give Presents to Those They Wish to Honor.

The New York Times

Published: July 2, 1911
Copyright © The New York Times

The image contains a newspaper article with illustrations and text. The text is not transcribed due to the complexity and size of the image. However, the article appears to discuss a celebration among the Dakotas and the Sioux tribes, focusing on a tradition known as Give-Away Day, where presents are given to those they wish to honor. The article includes illustrations and photographs to support the text. The date of publication is July 2, 1911, and the copyright is held by The New York Times.